

Date: 03/08/02

By: Randy Collier

Re: Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) Facilities

The use of Magnetic Resonance Imaging in the medical field has become an increasing concern for the construction industry. Highly specialized material design criteria must be addressed, including raised access flooring. Because of the use of magnetic fields, no ferrous materials are allowed within the boundaries of the facility.